Local Libraries May Combine

It may be that as the result of action by the city trustees at last Tuesday evening's monthly meeting the present library and the contemplated Harrison memorial library will combine. A committee of three was appointed to confer with a committee of the older body on ways and means.

It being pointed out that trees and shrubs at several street intersections were in many cases a menace to safety both to pedestrians and to auto drivers, Trustee John B. Dennis was appointed to confer with the city planning commission concerning the matter.

As the sixty days within which plans and specifications were to be filed for the proposed hotel near the beach was about to expire, the projectors were granted a further sixty days from August 7 to file date.

There was the usual discussion anent the proposed general city sewer, but nothing was done.

Hal Bragg wants to erect an ornamental rock wall around his property on the Eighty-acre tract, and requested that the street grade be established. No action.

The delapidated wood sidewalk on the Ocean avenue side of the city's property at Lincoln street was ordered removed. A dirt walk will be put down.

The city will go fifty-fifty on the cost of feeding Marshal Gus Englund's horse.

City Attorney Not Carmel Pooh Bah

Editor the Pine Cone:

I shall appreciate space in your columns for the publication of this letter.

There are numerous persons in Carmel who, apparently, do not properly understand my powers and duties as city attorney. I am the legal adviser of the Board of Trustees and of the city officers, and there my duties end. I have nothing to do with the merits or demerits of propositions submitted to the Board and am not responsible for the actions of the Board or of any other city officer. I am not deputy garbage collector, deputy city clerk, or deputy anything else. Citizens having complaints to make or desiring action taken by the Board of Trustees should deal directly with the Board and not with me. If there are legal questions involved, the Board will call on me to deal with them.

Very sincerely,
ARGYLL CAMPBELL.

Puppets at Golden Bough

One of the summer's most interesting theatrical events will be a performance of Clarks' Guignol Marionettes next Tuesday evening at the Theatre of the Golden Bough. These puppets are about eighteen inches high and are operated upon the hands and fingers of the puppeteers without the use of strings.

G. Fletcher Clark and Celia Rantz Clark, who are giving the performance, have won wide recognition through their marionette work. Having spent the summer enlarging their cast and repertoire, they will present the following program: "Dr. Faustus," a comedy version of the old Faust legend; "The Singing Master," a translation from the French, and "The Bird Feng," an oriental romance. This varied program is designed to show the wide range and many possibiliities of the guignol puppet.

While Carmel audiences need no introduction to stringed-figured marionettes, this will be the first appearance of the humorously grotesque guignol puppet since those of Alfred Kreymbourg played in the west several years ago.

The guignols have little in common with stringed figures. The type of play they use must be quite different from those best fitted for the more complicated stringed figures.

The woman's apparel shops in Carmel and Monterey are displaying some very attractive materials which may be fashioned into costumes of the Serra period. And, by the way, several men are threatening to remove their mustaches and whiskers if the ladies do not promptly attire themselves in Spanish-California attire.

EL CAMINO REAL

By Wheaton Hale Brewer

Padre Serra, Padre Serra, true Saint Francis of the West,
Would you had lived to see today the land you loved the best!
Padre Serra, Padre Serra, in your robes of dusty grey
Would your plodding feet were following the modern King's Highway.

I remember when the fences came that bound the country out—
When the thundering vaqueros passed with wild and piercing shout,
As they herded on the cattle, tossing horns above the dust,
Past brown sky-horizoned acres and bare tidelands, mud and crust.

I remember how the liveoaks spread a green and cooling shade
When the sun swept hot and searing into every dip and glade,
I remember how the poppies blazed beside the azure bay,
And how the heat-waves danced at noon above the King's Highway.

I remember when the saplings, gaunt and starved, were planted out;
How they languished through the summer, and next spring began to sprout;
I remember how the tank-carts rolled, with dizzy lurch and sway,
From Crystal Springs to water down and cool the King's Highway.

A boy, I counted day by day; a youth, by year and year.
But today I count by decades, for my life is dry and sere.
And the trees that struggled slowly, with their leaves all dusty grey,
Lift their heads and tower proudly up upon the King's Highway.

As Aaron's miracles were wrought, Padre Serra, so have we.
We have made our prayer by watering each proud, aspiring tree,
Until you have a monument mockers never shall gainsay—
The trees that arch and interlace along the King's Highway.

Totheroh's "Princess Solome" Next Great Local Attractions

On August 15 and 16, Dan Totheroh's new play, "The Princess Salome," will be presented, for the first time, in the lovely Theatre of the Golden Bough.

Dan Totheroh is presenting a new Salome, his own creation of the famous Daughter of Herodias. In doing this, Totheroh has taken a daring step, for inevitably his Salome must bear comparison with Oscar Wilde's heroine, that strange, decadent creature, so firmly fixed in the minds of the reading and play-going public. Indeed, Wilde's creation has become the accepted Salome of history.

As a matter of fact, Oscar Wilde's picturization is pure fiction. Nothing is really known about Salome. Only seven brief verses in St. Mark and an equal number in Matthew tell anything about Salome, and they are really concerned with St. John the Baptist, Salome being but secondary. Therefore, in writing a new version of this Biblical woman, Totheroh really has a virgin field, unhampered by historical facts, just as Wilde had.

In speaking of his play, Totheroh tells this much about it: "Salome has always been a little girl in my imagination; a little girl walking in the dark; a little girl unformed in mind and in spirit, influenced by a domineering mother and surrounded by a court of cruelty and terror. I first show her at the age of awakening, fourteen years old, an impressionable child, groping about through strange dreams and unknown yearnings. She encounters, by sheer chance, John the Baptist preaching his fiery creed in the Valley of the Jordan, and her brief conversation with this burning personality leaves an indelible impression on her, never to be lost. After that she becomes a thing apart from the sensual court, waiting only for another glimpse of this unknown prophet; another sound of his magic voice."

However, when John is brought to Herod's dungeon, a prisoner, two years later, Salome asks for his head to avenge an insult she has received from Herod, not knowing, of course, that the head is that of the man who has been the great, cleansing influence in her life.

When she discovers this, she bears the head in her own hands, a penitent, to Jesus. There is a tremendous uplift at the end when Salome follows John's disciples out through the gates of the palace to the road that winds up the hill.

The poem that follows is sung in the prologue by Miss Dorothea Johnston and gives the key to Totheroh's conception of Salome:

"Oh, Salome—Oh, Salome,
A little child who did not know—
A little Princess full of play—
Trying to find where she should go—
Lost—Lost was she—long, long ago.
Oh, little dancing Salome—
A little girl who lost her way.

'Dance, dance for me, Oh, Salome,'
Herod said, that dreadful day—
And so she did and went astray
For aye an aye—
Oh Salome!

A little girl who wandered far,
Seeking the place where flowers are.
A little leaf that loved the wind—
And dancing did not know she sinned
Ah, pity her and only say—
A little girl who lost her way."

The famous dance of the Seven Veils is done off the stage in Totheroh's drama. Totheroh is essentially interested in letting an audience use and develop its imagination. He believes that the average theatre-goer can imagine a much more beautiful and convincing dance than any actress or dancer can dance it for them, and there is then no chance of disappointment, for the imagination can never be disappointed.

Edward Kuster is composing incidental music for the play, basing it on the old Jewish scale, and Rose Bogdanoff, the remarkable young designer, will have complete charge of the costumes, scenery and lighting, assuring the public of a rare and picturesque production.

Totheroh will take "The Princess Salome" East with him, this fall, along with four other new plays he has completed. These plays are what Totheroh calls American soil plays, the first of which was "Wild Birds," the tragedy that caused so much discussion in San Francisco when it was done there last year. Richard Bennett will do the play in New York in the near future. Totheroh's one-act play, "In the Darkness," was just recently produced in New York.

Death of Master Teller of Sea Tales

Associated Press dispatches of last Sunday announce the death of Joseph Conrad, eminent author of sea tales, at Bishopbourne, England, on August 2. His death was wholly unexpected.

Joseph Conrad was born December 6, 1857, of Polish parentage. His full name was Joseph Conrad Korzeniowski. His early life as a sailor and a sea captain formed the background for his enthralling stories of the South Seas.

The sea and the men who follow it formed the themes of the novels for which he is noted, and his acquaintance with them dated from service in early youth with the French merchant navy. Later he served as mate and as captain in the British merchant marine.

Conrad visited America last year in response to repeated invitations of his publishers. Illness curtailed his stay to about one month.

He often said there had been three periods in his life. The first was, when a boy of 17, he left Poland, his native land, and went to sea. His second was his return to shore aften twenty years of life at sea. The third, he described as his marriage and his plan to return to sea which was abandoned because numerous "Little Schemes" made it necessary for him to keep on writing.

Among Conrad's best known books were "The Nigger of the Narcissus," "Lord Jim," "Victory" and "The Mirror of the Sea."

English Pianist Highly Praised

By David Alberto

The smallest audience to attend any event at the Theatre of the Golden Bough experienced a real aesthetic thrill last Saturday evening when Miss Ellen Edwards appeared as soloist.

It may be said that even those who attended only because it was the thing to do also found their pleasure there, for Miss Edwards is good to look upon, and besides Miss Edwards was gowned --- beautifully gowned.

Possibly these remarks are superfluous, for there is a great plenty to write about regarding Miss Edwards, the Pianist.

The program opened with the Sonata Appassionata of Beethoven. Regarding the performance of this work, hardly more could be said than that it was nicely played, for with the passing of the great Busoni still fresh in our minds, one can hardly forget the manner in which this work was performed by that Titanic character.

A Chopin group followed, well played indeed. In fact there were moments, notably in the last part of the Chopin F sharp minor nocturne which was given as an encore, of which it may be said that no woman has as yet conceived a finer interpretation.

Then followed a group of modern compositions; and then it was that Miss Edwards proved herself to be the possessor of a technique so pure and chrystal-like as to arouse the envy of most any pianist. The group included works of Debussy, Ravel, John Ireland and Phillips.

Miss Edwards' program also showed a fourth part which consisted of a Liszt Rhapsodie No. 12. If it was possible to play this number with greater perfection and with more sincerity than was displayed in group No. 3, Miss Edwards did so.

Following a rather trivial encore, we left with the feeling that Miss Edwards could easily have done it all over again.

And Ellen Edwards wore a blue and silver gown.

A neat bit of work in the way of a private and semi-public improvement is that recently done by Mr. Hill at San Carlos, near Eighth avenue. The sandy stretch between the asphalt and the sidewalk facing two lots has been leveled and covered with crushed rock. The whole block would look well done that way.

Miss "Bob" Hilliard left Carmel this week for Berkeley to enroll in the regular course in the University of California.

PINE NEEDLES

Mrs. Florence Moore is spending August in San Francisco.

P. J. Denny, local Chevrolet agent, will also handle the Buick line from now on.

Mrs. Joseph Slevin and son Gregory of San Francisco are guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Slevin for two weeks.

Wade Stewart, John Mikeleo and Paul Mercurio are spending a two weeks' vacation at Paraiso Springs.

Miss Eleanor Morris of San Francisco, who has been the house guest of Mrs. Allen Emery, has returned to the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Laumeister of Palo Alto have been here for a short stay in their beach home. They recently returned from abroad.

Mr. and Mrs. John Black of Los Gatos are in their cottage near the beach entrance to Pebble Beach for the month of August.

Suzanne Daniels returned to San Francisco on Friday. Her brother, John Daniels, and her aunt, Mrs. Niebaum, will remain in the Niebaum home for a longer stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Jennings of Menlo Park were guests of the Arthur Dunnes and Lee Schlesingers over the week-end. Mrs. McArthur of San Francisco has joined Mrs. Dunne for August.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Schiele, with their two daughters, Alice and Ruth, of St. Louis, Mo., who have spent several weeks in California, are returning home. Mr. Schiele is a brother of Mrs. Louis Rask of Carmel and Mrs. W. E. Parker of Monterey.

There will be a meeting of the Carmel Humane Society at the Pine Inn August 13, Wednesday, at 2 p. m. All members are asked to be present as matters of importance regarding the forming of a new animal shelter will be discussed.

Mrs. Truman P. Carter and Miss Amelia De Motte of Jacksonville, Ill., are visiting at the summer home of the Marshall De Motts on Scenic Road near Twelfth.

Reicher Art Entrances

"Wont you read us 'Salome!' Miss Hedwiga Reicher's class asked her guilessly the other day. And she looked at the limp group, exhausted from hard work, and smiled and said she would. So, on Thursday afternoon, in the prosaic office room next to the Golden Bough, her magic melted the walls and set a pale moon fleeing across the hot Judean sky, and gave us the young doomed voice of Salome and the gaunt echoing desert-voice of the Prophet John, and made the great cruel beauty of Wilde's drama a living thing for us.

This is only one of the many things Miss Reicher has given her class to remember. They thank her, not only for the straight sureness of her instruction, but for a kindling touch on their imaginations, a quickened faith in the reality of beauty and of service to an impersonal ideal, and for a vision of a world that might be as noble as they dreamed it in their childhood.

Well Known Author Dies in San Francisco

Margaret Sidney, author of the "Five Little Peppers" and other stories for children, has passed to the Great Story Land. Mrs. Daniel Lothrop was a frequent visitor in Carmel. She was a resident of Boston, but for several years past has spent some months with her daughter, Miss Margaret Lothrop, in Palo Alto. Funeral services were held at All Saints' Episcopal Church in Palo Alto last Sunday. Memorial services will be held in Old South Church, Boston.

Eugene Gillett and wife of Crockett visited the former's father this week. Mrs. R. F. Gillett is spending several months in her old Virginia home.

Annual Report of Carmel Library

Carmel Library Association held its regular annual meeting last Monday afternoon, re-electing Directors G. F. Beardsley, A. P. Fraser, A. H. Roseboom, Dr. H. W. Fenner and Mrs. Thomas Pudan, each for a four years' term. Officers for the ensuing year are: President, Mrs. L. B. Dutton; vice-president, G. F. Beardsley; secretary, Miss E. Harrington; treasurer, Dr. H. W. Fenner.

The treasury has benefitted by the following services of friends:

Lecture by Mr. James Worthington.

Lecture by Dr. D. T. MacDougal.

Dance given by Mrs. Hooper.

Sale of painting given by Miss M. De Neale Morgan.

Rummage sale managed by Mrs. Alice Josselyn.

Reports indicate receipts of $1652.46 and expenditures of $1503.07, exclusive of balance at the beginning of last year amounting to $173.37, and showing present cash on hand of $322.76.

By gift and purchase 488 books have been added during the year, bringing the number listed to 6943. The circulation for the last twelve months is 23,710, which is nearly 500 in excess of that for the same period immediately preceding.

The services of two librarians during the busy months of summer have been necessary for a number of years, and Miss Grace Wickham is again assisting Miss Janet Prentiss, giving twice as much time as ever before to the constantly growing work.

The need of increased service, replacements necessitated by the regular wear and tear and by the poor quality of modern bindings, and the desirability of constant additions of new publications in all departments of the library render an increased financial support essential in order that the usefulness of the library shall not be permitted to diminish, but shall continually be carried forward. Larger resources make possible a larger output—more books in the hands of a greater number of readers. The experiment is being tried of furnishing some duplicates at a charge of 5 cents per day of books that are in great demand, of which the library otherwise can afford only one copy. The experiment promises well so far.

Short Bits Relating to The Seven Arts

JAZZ HITS THE SCOTCH

On the high wave of jazz that is flooding the world from Greenland's mountains to the coral strand of India, all protests float like so many ineffectual corks. There is fox trotting in the castles of the Rhine, one-stepping in Tara's halls and toddling in Turkey, says the Argonaut.

By latest reports the shimmie has penetrated the mountain strongholds of the McPhersons and McTavishes, where stern Caledonians may be observed swinging their kilts in the Kansas City shuffle, and shouting to the Ossianic gale that you have to kiss mamma every night or you can't kiss mamma at all, while the kettle drummer ties his arms in knots and reeling pipers tear the remaining rags out of ragtime.

OPEN AIR THEATRE IN DENMARK

The Danish open-air theatre in the Royal Deer Park, six or eight miles outside Copenhagen, can always rely upon some of Denmark's most famous actors and actresses to assist it. This year M. Adam Poulsen is the principal actor and the first play was Adam Oehlenschlager's tragedy, "Hagon Jarl." M. Poulsen himself took the part of Earl Hakon.

CADEMAN WINS HONORS

Charles Wakefield Cadman, the eminent American composer, who, when he was in Carmel several years ago so ill that he was given but a few months to live, is still going strong, has received recognition recently from two organizations. On April 27 the David Bispham Memorial Fund of Chicago awarded him the David Bispham medal for his work in behalf of American opera. On June 16 the Wolcott Conservatory of Music of Denver conferred upon him the degree of doctor of music for distinguished services to American music.

GOING THEIR SEVERAL WAYS

The Duncan Sisters, dancers, who appeared at the Monterey high school auditorium some months ago, under the auspices of the Peninsula Philharmonic Society, have parted company, so 'tis said. Margo will open a school in Paris, Anna has gone to Vienna, and Lisa is contemplating a vaudeville tour.

PICTURES OF ANCIENTS

Copper ornaments that were made between 6,500 and 9,000 years ago are dug up near Ur, city of ancient Babylonia. Made thousand of years before King Tut was born, these copper ornaments are among the earliest works of art. They express the infancy of creative spirit. The Babylonia copper objects represent men and oxen. In addition to being art, they were intended as a history of accomplishment—main motive of which is vanity.

TENOR ADOPTS CARMEL

The permanent postoffice address of E. J. Balleau is: Carmel, California.

A conspicuous acquisition to Carmel's increasing number of world-known artists is Enrico Jean Balleau, one of the leading tenors of the Metropolitan opera company. He it was who, upon the death of Caruso, sang and acted the parts of the golden-voiced one.

Balleau has sung at La Scalla in Milan, at the San Carlos in Naples and in the Paris opera.

He is here for his health. His family is with him. An enthusiastic local musician remarked yesterday: "Mr. Balleau has come, and we shall keep him."

HARRY LEON WILSON AROUSES IRE OF FORMER AUSTRALIAN PRIME MINISTER HUGHES

It is clear that Harry Leon Wilson of Carmel-by-the-Sea will be on safest ground if he maintains a very commodious air space between himself and William Morris Hughes, Prime Minister of Australia during war time and said to be personally two-fisted. As is known to most Americans who can read English, Mr. Wilson has been saying, through the journal formerly owned and edited by the celebrated Benjamin Franklin, certain things about the great continent of Australia which former fighting Premier Hughes declares to be things that are not.

The Hughes opinon of the Wilson person as a purveyor of information leaves nothing to be desired as an exposition of complete, utter, malignant, unfathomable and irredeemable unworthiness. And he states that we may expect a further and more detailed setting forth in an early issue of the journal founded by Benjamin Franklin. That number should be a best seller.—S. F. Chronicle.

With an Electric Range Pies and Cakes are easy

The Electric Range oven is so well insulated that summer baking will not make your kitchen unbearably hot as the old-fashioned oven does. You'll find it so much easier to set a good table and have enough leisure to enjoy summertime, too, if you cook electrically.

Youthful Writer .. Discusses Trifles

Valkyrie Campbell in July Wee Acorn

"Trifles they may be, but trifles make perfection," said Michel Angelo when a friend remarked that he had done only a few trifles to the statue he was forming. This is true all through God's creation. The sweet songs of birds, the bright colored butterflies fluttering in the fresh air, all the flowers; are they not all trifles? But what great pleasure and happiness they bring to the world!

It would seem a trifle to some people to pass a beetle turned over on its back. This wasn't so with Abraham Lincoln. One day as he walked along, talking to a friend, he suddenly stopped, walked back and, stooping, carefully righted a beetle which was waving its feet in the air, vainly trying to turn over. His companion, on going back, exclaimed in surprise that the president should be bothering himself with a little bug.

"Well," said Lincoln, "do you know, if I had left that bug struggling there on its back I wouldn't have felt just right. I wanted to put him on his feet and give him an equal chance with all the other bugs of his class."

Things similar to these happen in every-day life. Yesterday we all went for a walk and, stopping to watch a butterfly, saw him, unaware of danger, fly into a spider's web. He was unable to free himself, so, ducking under a fence which barred our path, we made our way to the captured butterfly. Carefully we freed it and were doubly repaid when we watched a happy, bright speck of gold and brown fly out into the sunshine. Now our attention was called to some bees, also prisoners of the spider. Having freed the reviving ones, we continued our walk with happy hearts.

When out walking on the Fourth of July I stooped, when passing a blackberry bush, to pluck a berry. I noticed a moth with black wings edged in white with a blue body and red markings. This was also a "trifle," but did its colors not represent the freedom of our country?

Thus far I have spoken of nature, but trifles apply to other things as well. It is a little thing to crumple up a piece of paper and carelessly throw it down. Carmel is such a beautiful place we should try to keep it so. On the streets and in the post office I have noticed numerous papers and envelopes lying about. There is a basket for this purpose. Why not use it? It is just as easy to put your papers into the basket on your way out and how much better it would look! The picturesque sand dunes are another place where papers are thrown. If you think, "Oh, well; everyone else does it, just one more won't hurt," stop and say, "If everybody said this and just threw their 'trifle,' the beach would soon be covered with paper.

"Trifles they may be, but trifles make perfection."

Today Mrs. Lorena Underwood again opens her bake shop at Marina. She makes a specialty of vitimin health bread, which gives strength and produces less fat. Suitable for growing children and invalids. Tasty to all. adv

REMINISCENCES

Do you remember?

When cords and cords of pine fire wood stood around the streets of Carmel, and sold for two dollars a cord!

When the mail-bag was unlocked to place therein "just one more letter" before despatching!

When Rudy Ohm and Mr. Horn drove the stage between Carmel and Monterey!

When rabbits were trapped on Ocean avenue, right in the heart of what is now the business center!

The Christmas tree festival at Carmel hall, promoted by the mother of L. S. Slevin, where everyone in town received a gift!

The performances of "Cinderella" by the Kegg-Goldsmith Marinettes here last week-end were well attended and greatly enjoyed. It is hoped that these wizards of the puppet art will meet with as great success everywhere they go as here.

INDIFFERENCE IS FATAL

What is the reason of the growing indifference on the part of American voters to the privilege of suffrage? Precise statistics are not available for its explanation. Possibly it may be due to the fact that equal suffrage doubled the number of possible voters, while women do not go to the polls as generally as do men. There are those who might argue that the disparity is due to heavy immigration for the last ten years; and yet casual observation suggests that the foreign-born voter is more apt to make use of his privilege than is one sprung from many generations of native-born American citizens.

We are moved to the following observations by a recent statement in Collier's Weekly that in 1896 approximately 80 per cent of the voters of America cast ballots in the Presidential election; in 1900 the number dropped to only 73 per cent; in 1908, to 66 per cent; in 1912 to 62 per cent and in 1920 less than 50 per cent. "That is the descending curve of American democracy. Can we turn it upward again?" was the concluding statement.

It does not matter whether his political sympathies are Republican, Democratic, "third party," Socialist, Farmer-Labor or what not. Unsound policies are not the exclusive characteristic of any party and bad government does not necessarily result from any one party getting control of the country. It is more likely to result when the individual voter becomes indifferent. The best safeguard against bad government is to impress upon every citizen the importance of his having something to say with his ballot about how the country is to be governed during the next four years.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Winters and son are Modesto visitors here for two weeks.

Mrs. Ralph Davidson Miller was called to Los Angeles last week by the illness of her daughter.

Contractor L. E. Gottfried will build a three-room cottage on Lopez avenue for Miss Mary Collins of White River, Arizona.

Miss Louise Conger is occupying her attractive new three-room bungalow in Carmel Woods. It was built by L. E. Gottfried.

The W. H. Orrick residence at Pebble Beach is nearing completion. Houghton Sawyer of San Francisco was the architect and M. J. Murphy the contractor.

Miss Rose Bogdanoff and her staff of helpers are quite busy on the scenery and costumes for Dan Totheroh's "Princess Salomi," to be given at the Golden Bough this month-end.

The former Vachell house at Monte Verde and Twelfth, now the property of J. L. Doulton, is in the hands of Contractor M. J. Murphy, who is making additions and alterations.

Mrs. Earl Sanford, formerly of the Morosco Stock Company in Los Angeles, later in the movies, is a visitor here with her children. Mrs. Santord will spend the winter in New York.

A count of the number of Bakersfield people sojourning in Carmel last week showed over twenty. It sure do get hot in the San Joaquin about this time, and the ocean breezes here feel mighty good.

Rolin G. Watkins, newspaperman, secretary of the Monterey Chamber of Commerce, has been made chief of publicity of the Serra Pilgrimage. He knows his job, too.

Recent guests here of Mrs. Fred H. Smithson were Signor and Madam Antonio DeGrassi of Berkeley. Miss Marion Elmo, president of the Tired Housewives Club of Los Angeles, was the guest of Miss Marion Smithson.

Miss Adele J. Closs and Mrs. Marguerite Byron, both artists of San Francisco, have returned to their homes after a fortnight's stay here. They spent much time sketching. They are looking forward to a visit here during Serra Week.

The Viking hut of Mrs. A. G. Reynolds at Carmel Highlands is completed, and a unique house-warming was given recently. Only widows and bachelor maids were the guests and they came attired in fancy dress, handed down from their ancestors.

On August 15 Gordon Davis and Miss Evelyn Thomas are putting on Sophocles' masterpiece, "Oedipus Rex," at Stanford University. The play will be staged before the facade of the museum. The cast is recruited from the Davis Workshop Class.

The sound of a police whistle on Ocean avenue nowadays is the signal for the shopkeepers and clerks to rush to the front door. "Wonder who Gus has got now?" is the usual remark; meaning that some autoist has run afoul of the traffic ordinance. The marshal is right on the job.

Chop Suey Saturdays and Sundays at Curtis'.
